LEADERSHIP 100
CONFERENCE

THE BREAKERS – PALM BEACH, FLORIDA
FEBRUARY 24-27, 2011

YESTERDAY, TODAY, AND FOREVER

Jesus Christ is the same yesterday, today, and forever. Hebrews 13:8

Beloved Brothers and Sisters in Christ,

The conclusion of one calendar year and the beginning of another is a time filled with reflection and anticipation. It is a time when we look back over the past year and consider our challenges and joys, our highlights and struggles, and our accomplishments as well as the tasks that are not completed. It is also a time when we look ahead to a new year with a sense of anticipation, contemplating what may come, planning our activities, and hoping for health and happiness. Our planning is already underway as evidenced by this 20th Annual Leadership 100 Conference where we assemble as a family of faith in a new year.

All of this reflection and anticipation is encouraged by a culture around us that celebrates the passing of the year and of time without a deep spiritual connection to the events and commemorations that reflect genuine hope and assurance. As Orthodox Christians we are blessed in this transition from one year to the next by two beautiful and holy feasts of the Church which are filled with both reflection and anticipation. The Feast of our Lord's Nativity commemorates the light of truth that dispels the darkness of sin and death, a feast of joy in anticipation of God's blessings, while the Feast of Theophany, another great occasion filled with light and grace, commemorates the baptism of Jesus by John in the Jordan River and the revelation of the Holy Trinity as Christ inaugurated His earthly ministry. On this day we reflect on the spiritual significance of this miraculous event and anticipate our continuous transformation in the journey of faith unto salvation.

For Orthodox Christians, the beginning of a new year as a time of reflection and anticipation is focused on our spiritual lives and on our ministry of prayer and service. In the Feast of the Nativity we are presented with the One who became man for our salvation, and in the Feast of Theophany we are enlightened by the witness of the One who sanctifies our lives with His presence. In His holy birth we receive the gift that should be offered and proclaimed throughout the world, and in His baptism we see the power of the Holy Spirit who also anoints us to share grace and truth through our lives.

Thus, we begin a new year with our hearts and minds filled with these celebrations and with the grace and calling we share as the children of God. We begin a new year with opportunities for worship and service as we deepen our communion with God and strengthen our witness to others. We begin a new year in the Lord with a commitment to live each moment in the presence of Christ and to use each day to bring Him honor and glory. We begin a new year reflecting on the revelation of God's love, on His forgiveness, on our journey, and we anticipate the blessings of His power and grace in days to come, mindful of the scriptural message that Jesus Christ is the same yesterday, today, and forever.

As our nation and our world go through a wrenching economic crisis, social unrest and unfathomable tragedies such as we witnessed with the senseless killing of innocents in Tucson, Arizona, in the persecution and flight of Christians in the Middle East, and in the turmoil in Egypt, we need to contemplate the meaning of this message of hope and renewal in our own lives and appreciate once more the urgency of delivering it to our fellow human beings. We must learn anew our responsibilities to one another and to our nation and the world. We must learn anew the true meaning of philanthropy as a loving service that gives a deeper meaning to our lives that neither wealth nor status nor success nor fame can fill. We need a new seriousness about living and living well as we were taught by the Ancient Greek philosophers and our Church Fathers.

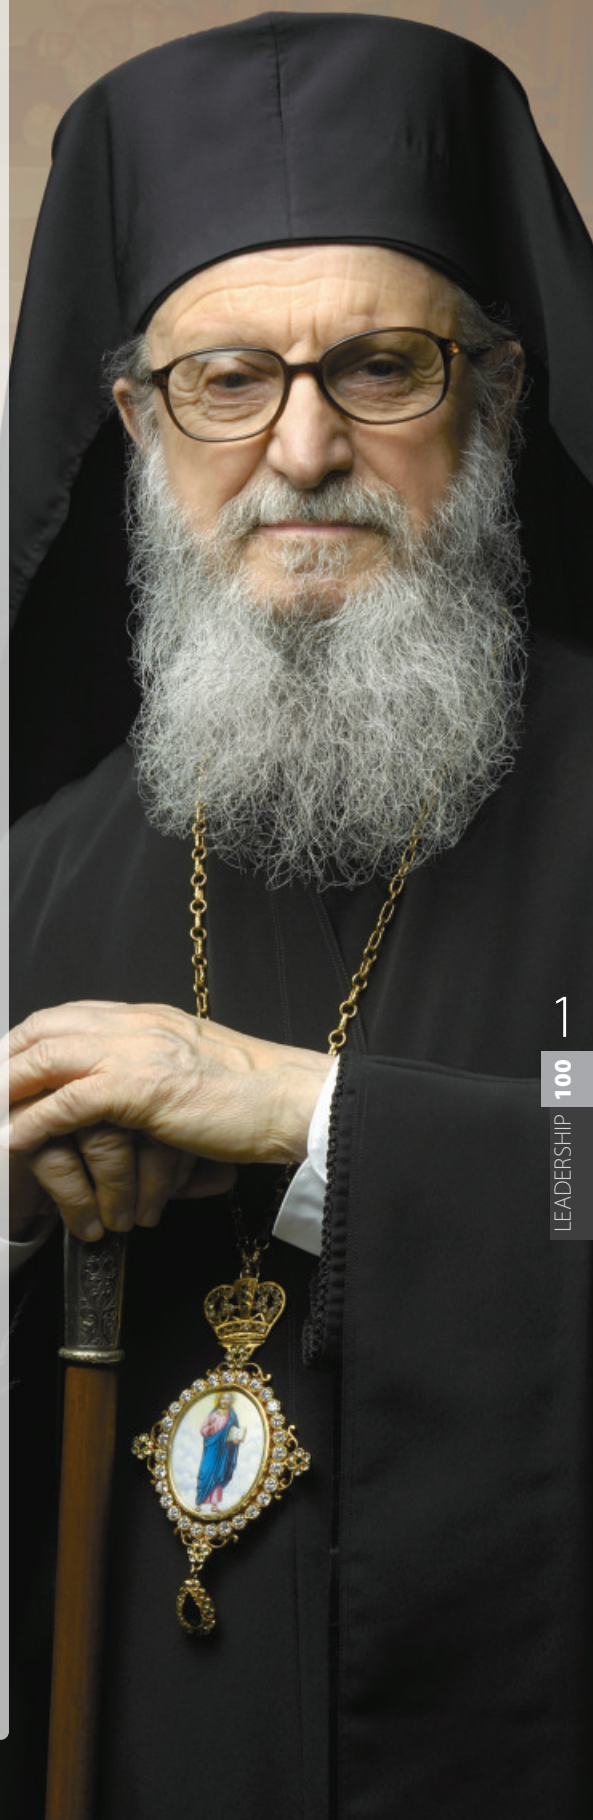

We need to understand that ministry encompasses reflection and transformations as well as dedicated service that can change numerous lives with hope, love, and support. For all of us, we can only anticipate the great and wondrous things that will be accomplished in and through the lives of those who are blessed by our ministries.

In this new year and through this Leadership 100 family, I encourage you to engage seriously in your chosen ministry in support of our Church's ministries, and to offer your prayers for those who work diligently and faithfully in the service of our fellow human beings and of God. May we also share in the joy of this season of light and life, expecting the great and abundant blessings of God in the coming year as we serve one another and all people in the grace and power of Jesus Christ our Lord, who is with us forever.

With paternal love in Christ,

20TH ANNUAL LEADERSHIP 100 CONFERENCE

Dear Leadership 100 Members,

Welcome to the 20th Annual Leadership 100 Conference. This year's conference is designed to stimulate you intellectually, strengthen you spiritually, and engage you in formulating new and innovative ideas by which to advance our faith-based philanthropic mission.

Constantine G. and Maria Caras

The mission of Leadership 100 is to promote Orthodoxy and Hellenism. The two are intertwined. Therefore, during this conference, we will focus on some of the important Orthodox faith ministries Leadership 100 has funded during the past 25 years. We also will highlight speakers of Hellenic ancestry and Philhellenes, who have spectacularly transmitted Hellenic ideals into the forefront of American life.

Our Spiritual Leader, His Eminence Archbishop Demetrios, will deliver his annual Bible Study and Lecture. We also will be joined by Ted Leonsis, internet pioneer, sports team owner, filmmaker, author, and philanthropist; Dr. Peter Diamandis, space pioneer and Chairman and CEO of the X PRIZE Foundation; John McKesson Camp II, Director of the Athenian Agora Excavations; and Michael Psilakis, the renowned Executive Chef. A special tribute will be paid to Dr. Constantine "Takis" Papadakis, of blessed memory, in recognition of his many innovative contributions to education in the United States and to Hellenic ideals.

Our program also includes special events for our Leadership 100 Partners, now close to 100 strong, and our young guests attending the conference. Please make sure you attend all events, including the General Assembly, where you will be given every opportunity to offer your recommendations for the future of Leadership 100. As always, special attention has been given to making the Welcome Reception, Glendi, and Grand Banquet memorable events. The success of the conference depends on your participation. Please consult your schedules for more details about what promises to be an exciting program.

Our conference also offers an opportunity to relax from the rigors of a harsh winter, make new friends, renew acquaintances, and rededicate ourselves to our common mission.

If your travel plans permit, please don't forget Liturgy at St. Mark Church in Boca Raton on Sunday morning. Bus service will be provided.

My wife, Maria, and I look forward to greeting you personally during your stay at our 20th Annual Leadership 100 Conference.

Warmest regards,

Constantine G. Caras
Chairman

20TH ANNUAL LEADERSHIP 100 CONFERENCE

Maria Allwin

Dear Leadership 100 Members,

On behalf of the Board of Trustees, welcome to the 20th Annual Leadership 100 Conference at The Breakers, Palm Beach, Florida. I was both humbled and privileged to have accepted the role of Conference Chair. I was also enthusiastic to learn that Leadership 100 is recognizing the realities of the times in which we live and the necessity of transforming our philanthropy and our fellowship to meet new challenges.

While I am a new member of the Board of Trustees, I have been engaged all my life in the work of the Church and the life of the nation through the activism I believe is required of every faithful member, every citizen, every parent and every human being.

This year's conference has required careful and detailed planning to control costs while, at the same time, to create an inspiring program of thoughtful dialogue and reflection. Foremost in our Spiritual leader, His Eminence Archbishop Demetrios, but also in an exciting range of speakers, from Ted Leonis and Dr. Peter Diamandis to John McKesson Camp II and Michael Psilakis, we cover the diverse worlds of faith and philanthropy, business and science, and even culinary art, the last of which reveals our Hellenic disposition.

None of our conferences has been complete without the full expression of our Hellenic Heritage, which, I am pleased, will be manifest in the familiar and joyful sound of Alpha Music during our Hellenic Festival. You can also be assured that I have made certain that every event, from the Opening Breakfast to the Forums, and especially the Grand Banquet, meets the demanding standards of our Leadership 100 family. I am certain that The Breakers, a familiar venue to many of you, will fulfill your every expectation.

The greatest pleasure for me was working with our Chairman, Constantine Caras, our beloved Paulette Poulos, who runs Leadership 100 like the Chief Executive Officer of a major corporation, only with loving kindness, and her exceptional staff, as well as the consultants who have worked with the organization over so many years. I count them all as friends.

Most of all, I look to the annual joy of gathering together the Leadership 100 family, the bonding that has become so essential to our busy lives, our intellectual and spiritual growth, the great fun and familiarity of those who share values and outlook, including our young and promising Leadership 100 Partners and our newest members.

I look forward to greeting each of you at The Breakers in Palm Beach, Florida

Warmest regards,

To Dr. Constantine Papadakis, of Blessed Memory, Preeminent Educator and Distinguished Member of Leadership 100

Dr. Constantine Papadakis raised the endowment, enrollment and profile of Drexel University during his tenure as President of that institution. Taki will be awarded the Archbishop Iakovos Leadership 100 Award for Excellence, posthumously, in a special tribute at the Grand Banquet, Saturday evening. His wife and daughter, Eliana and Maria, will accept on his behalf. Taki was a distinguished member of Leadership 100, who lived daily his Orthodox faith and bequeathed to all the best of Hellenic ideals.

As President of the private Philadelphia University, he was familiarly called "Taki" by students and friends alike and was known for his smiling, gregarious personality. His reputation was extended beyond the school he so loved, to the nation and to the world, and he was honored for his contributions in advancing education. His legacy of promoting Hellenic ideals will live on in Leadership 100, in the Greek American Community and will no doubt continue to influence the lives of many of our young people and of our society. To him, education was the most important gift we could give our children and he encouraged our youth to be diligent in their studies and to strive for perfection.

An innovator in higher education with extensive experience in both academe and the corporate world, he was President of Drexel from 1995 to 2009. He had used the historic strengths of the University (cooperative education, Drexel's focus on technology and the rich resources of its Philadelphia location) to increase full-time undergraduate enrollment from 4,500 in 1996 to more than 11,000 today. Drexel now educates a headcount of 21,000 students, is the sixth-largest employer in Philadelphia, employing 8,100 people, and has an annual budget of more than $650 million. Under his leadership, the school acquired schools of medicine, nursing and public health, and in 2006 started its own law school. Papadakis also oversaw the construction of numerous buildings on campus.

Before coming to Drexel, Papadakis was the dean of engineering at the University of Cincinnati. He received his undergraduate degree in civil engineering from the National Technical University in Greece. He held a master's degree in civil engineering from the University of Cincinnati and a Ph.D. from the University of Michigan.

Papadakis also once headed the civil engineering department at Colorado State University and was vice president of Tetra Tech Inc., a Honeywell subsidiary, before joining Cincinnati. Dr. Papadakis joined Bechtel Power Company in 1974, where he served in several engineering positions. He was author or co-author of 80 articles and technical publications.

Papadakis served as a member of the Business Higher Education Forum and the Council on Competitiveness. He also served on the board of directors of the National Commission for Cooperative Education and the World Trade Center of Greater Philadelphia. He was a member of the Greater Philadelphia Chamber of Commerce Executive Committee, the Board of Directors of the Opera Company of Philadelphia, the Hellenic College/Holy Cross Board of Trustees, and the Judicial Council of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania. The recipient of numerous awards and honors here and abroad, he was inducted into the Order of St. Andrew the Apostle as Archon of the Ecumenical Patriarchate of Constantinople.

Peter Diamandis, Space Pioneer

Peter Diamandis

Dr. Peter Diamandis, who will address the Grand Banquet on Saturday, February 26, 2011, will be presented with the Archbishop Iakovos Leadership 100 Award for Excellence for his contributions to science, our national life and Hellenic ideals. A pioneer in the commercial space industry, he is the Chairman and CEO of the X PRIZE Foundation, which leads the world in designing and launching large incentive prizes to drive radical breakthroughs for the benefit of humanity. Best known for the $10 million Ansari X PRIZE for private spaceflight and the $10 million Progressive Automotive X PRIZE for 100 mile-per-gallon equivalent cars, the Foundation is now launching prizes in Exploration, Life Sciences, Energy, and Education.

Diamandis is also an international leader in the commercial space arena, having founded and run many of the leading entrepreneurial companies in this sector including Zero Gravity Corporation, the Rocket Racing League and Space Adventures.

As co-Founder & Chairman of the Singularity University, a Silicon Valley based institution partnered with NASA, Google, Autodesk and Nokia, Diamandis counsels the world's top enterprises on how to utilize exponential technologies and incentivized innovation to dramatically accelerate their business objectives.

He also co-founded the International Space University in Strasbourg, France where he served as its first Managing Director and today serves as a Trustee.

Diamandis is the winner of the 2006 Heinlein Award, the 2006 Lindberg Award, the 2006 Wired RAVE Award, the Konstantine Tsiolkovsky Award and twice the winner of the Aviation and Space technology Laurel.

Diamandis attended MIT where he received his degrees in molecular genetics and aerospace engineering, as well as Harvard Medical School where he received his M.D.

Diamandis' stated mission is "to open the space frontier for humanity." In a recent article in the Wall Street Journal he observed that the "fundamental realities" that will drive space exploration are private capital rather than government agencies, which now see space as a good investment, and companies and investors who now realize that "metals, minerals, energy and real estate" are in "near-infinite quantities in space."

Ted Leonsis, Business Entrepreneur

Ted Leonsis

Ted Leonsis, one of the country's premier business entrepreneurs and a member of Leadership 100, who will address the Business Forum, Friday, February 25, 2011, will be presented with the Archbishop Iakovos Leadership 100 Award for Excellence for his contributions to the economy, our national life and Hellenic ideals. He is the founder, chairman and majority owner of Monumental Sports & Entertainment, which comprises three professional sports teams – the Washington Capitals (NHL), the Washington Wizards (NBA) and the Washington Mystics (WNBA) –, as well as Verizon Center and the Baltimore-Washington Ticketmaster franchise. The company also operates Kettler Capitals Iceplex (the Capitals' training facility and front office) and George Mason University's Patriot Center.

Leonsis retired from active management of AOL in 2006, where during the previous 13 years he held a number of senior positions, including vice chairman and president. He retains the position of vice chairman emeritus. At a May 2010 ceremony celebrating AOL's 25th anniversary, one of the buildings on AOL's Virginia campus was renamed the Leonsis Creative Center in his honor.

Recently Leonsis was chairman of Revolution Money, which provides secure payments through an Internet-based platform and in 2009 was sold to American Express; Leonsis is now on the Board of Directors at American Express. He is currently chairman of Clearspring Technologies, the largest online content sharing network, which connects publishers, services and advertisers to audiences on the social web. Over the past 20 years he has been a board member or early investor in a number of successful technology companies, from Google to Groupm.

In 2008, Leonsis founded SnagFilms, which enables online audiences to find, watch, share and support thousands of documentary films. SnagFilms grew out of Leonsis' experience as a producer of such award-winning documentary films as Nanking and Kicking It. Nanking premiered at the 2007 Sundance Film Festival, where it was awarded the Documentary Editing Award and has won a Peabody Award and an Emmy Award. Kicking It premiered at the 2008 Sundance Film Festival and aired on ESPN. A third documentary produced by Leonsis, A Fighting Chance, was aired on ESPN in the Fall of 2010. In addition to being the Internet's leading site for watching and sharing nonfiction films, SnagFilms owns indieWIRE, the leading news, information and networking site for independent-minded filmmakers, the industry and moviegoers alike.

While working on documentaries and establishing SnagFilms, Leonsis coined and championed the term "filmanthropy." It is his unique way of combining film and philanthropy, raising the awareness of important issues with the goal of promoting change by increasing volunteerism and activating charitable giving.

Leonsis' book The Business of Happiness: 6 Secrets To Extraordinary Success In Work And Life was published in February 2010 and quickly became a bestseller. Previous books by Leonsis include Blue Magic: The People, Power, and Politics Behind The IBM Personal Computer (1988).

In addition to serving on the Board of Directors of American Express, where he is chairman of the Technology and Innovation Committee, Leonsis sits on the board of publicly held companies such as Nutrisystem and Rosetta Stone. He also serves on the Technology Committee of the Board of Directors for Alcatel-Lucent, and the Board of Directors of his alma mater, Georgetown University. Leonsis has numerous business interests and investments, including the following companies: Algentis, GridPoint, Triporati, Mahalo.com, MediaBank, MobilePosse, ObjectVideo, SB Nation, TidalTV and Zedge.

Leonsis is a committed philanthropist and is actively involved with numerous charities, including Best Buddies, D.C. Central Kitchen, See Forever Foundation, Street Soccer USA, Venture Philanthropy Partners, YouthAIDS and others through the work of the Leonsis Foundation.

John McKesson Camp II, Classical Archaeologist

John McKesson Camp II

John McKesson Camp II, a noted archaeologist, will address the Opening Breakfast, Thursday, February 24, 2011. He will be presented with the Archbishop Iakovos leadership 100 Award for Achievement. A graduate of Harvard University where he studied the Classics, he earned an MA and PhD in Classical Archaeology from Princeton University. He has taught at Princeton, the ASCS in Athens, DePauw University, Lake Forest College, St. John's University, University of Maryland and Randolph-Macon College, where he is currently Stavros Niarchos Foundation Professor of Classics as of 2009.

Dr. Camp has led or participated in excavations at the Athenian Agora, Corinth, Isthmia, Pylos, Epidaurus, Naxos, Koilada (underwater), and Athens. He delivered the Behrakis Lecture at the Museum of Fine Arts in Boston, the Devens Lecture at the Chicago Art Institute and spoke at the Getty Museum and at numerous universities, institutes and museums abroad, including the National Museum and Benaki Museum in Athens, the University of Athens, the University of Thessaloniki, the University of Volos, the British Museum, the Albright Institute in Jerusalem, the Academy of World History in Moscow, Edinburgh University, Oxford University and University College Dublin.

Dr. Camp has served on the Advisory Board, American Journal of Archaeology and as an Academic Trustee of the Governing Board of the AIA. His numerous books and publications include: The Athenian Agora, The Athenian Agora Guide, The Birth of Democracy, The Archaeology of Athens, The World of the Ancient Greeks, The Athenian Agora: New Perspectives on an Ancient Site, Gods and Heroes in the Athenian Agora, Ancient Athenian Building Methods, Horses and Horsemanship in the Athenian Agora, The Athenian Agora: a short guide to the excavations, and The Athenian Citizen.

Michael Psilakis, Executive Chef

Michael Psilakis

Executive Chef Michael Psilakis will address the Saturday Forum, February 26, 2011. He will be presented with the Archbishop Iakovos Leadership 100 Award for Achievement. Psilakis has acquired many of the food world's highest honors in the short time he has been on the culinary scene. In 2008 alone, Psilakis was awarded Food & Wine's Best New Chef and Bon Appetit's Chef of the Year distinctions; nominated for A-List Chef by Bravo TV; and had his upscale Greek restaurant, Anthos, nominated for a James Beard Award in the category of Best New Restaurant. He was also named "Chef of the Year" by Esquire Magazine and his restaurant Anthos was awarded a Michelin star and named the third of ten best new restaurants by The New York Times restaurant reviewer, Frank Bruni.

As the eldest first generation son in a traditional Greek family on Long Island, Psilakis was destined to embody the hospitality and appreciation for food so highly valued by his party-loving family. When his father installed an immense BBQ in the backyard, he taught young Michael to roast whole lambs on a spit.

A tremendous cook, the chef's mother taught him everything about the flavors and techniques of classic Greek cooking and remains his greatest influence in the kitchen. "Even today, the flavors of my dishes are my mother's flavors," says Psilakis. "And my instincts for taking Greek cuisine in new directions—these I've inherited from her."

The opening of Onera on Manhattan's Upper West Side allowed Psilakis to realize a longtime dream and return to the cuisine that first ignited his passion for cooking. The unique upscale Greek-inspired cuisine he served at Onera earned him a reputation as a rising culinary star.

Already in the works were plans to bring new additions to the New York dining scene. Psilakis transformed Onera into Kefi, a rustic cozy neighborhood spot serving the Greek food he ate as a child. He moved his upscale Greek cooking from Onera to a larger stage with the opening of Anthos in midtown. Meaning rebirth or blossoming, Anthos features Psilakis' signature Greek cuisine and has also earned numerous accolades. In December 2008, Kefi was relocated to a larger space, tripling the size of the beloved taverna. May 2009 brought a partnership with Kor Hotel Management to open Eos, a striking Mediterranean restaurant at the new Viceroy Miami at the Icon Brickell urban resort enclave on Biscayne Bay.
