29 NEWS OF OUR MEMBERS
In this world we often measure a man by his success, his accomplishments and his influence. By any of these measures, Michael E. Jaharis was a great man. But through the eyes of faith, we know true greatness by the light one radiates on the lives of others, by being of the mind of Christ and living a life filled with the Holy Spirit. In these ways, Michael E. Jaharis was a giant.

Michael’s sharp intelligence catapulted him to the top of his business pursuits. At the same time, his heartfelt compassion for others exhibited a wisdom and humility that drove his philanthropy. His deep faith kept him grounded and accessible to all.

We rightly praise Michael Jaharis for his great success and unparalleled philanthropy to our beloved Church, to our Hellenic culture, and through his gifts to education, science and the arts, and to humanitarian crises. And for all these, his beloved wife Mary was his true partner and collaborator.

His greatest gift was his towering personality. He was a beacon of light for those of us who were privileged to know him.

On April 3, many of Michael’s admirers gathered for the 40-day memorial of his death at age 87 as they had done for his funeral and burial. His Eminence Archbishop Demetrios, his spiritual father and close friend, then captured the moment in stating: “Michael Jaharis was a truly great and unique human being. His passing creates the end of an era, but it is not an end, but a beginning for him, the beginning of a life with God.”

As Archdiocesan Vice President and a Founder of Leadership 100, Michael was far more than a great benefactor of the Church. He was a model husband and father, besides being an exemplary philanthropist and pioneering businessman. As the Archbishop noted, “his good works were so numerous that I am absolutely unable to count them; they are impossible to grasp...They are the best kind of works. His memory is going to be eternal, no doubt.”

If we were to try, we would begin in noting that he was an Archon of the Ecumenical Patriarchate and supporter of the Greek Orthodox Church in America for many decades and a perennial and innovative supporter of numerous schools and universities, including Hellenic College/Holy Cross School of Theology. He and Mary were prominent benefactors of the Metropolitan Museum of Art, the Art Institute of Chicago and the Metropolitan Opera, along with providing aid to the children and elderly in crisis-torn Greece and Cyprus.

Michael never rested, whether in business or in philanthropy. Right up to the end of his life, he looked ahead to the next project. He was the driving force behind the effort to rebuild St. Nicholas Church destroyed in the September 11th terrorist attacks. He said the new shrine would provide a “shining spotlight on the Greek Orthodox faith and our core values of love, respect, peace, healing and forgiveness.” Those were the very characteristics of his own personality.

To say that Michael E. Jaharis will be missed is an understatement. His dear wife, Mary, his loving children and grandchildren have suffered a grievous loss. First and foremost our hearts go out to them, praying for their consolation in the months and years ahead. They, like us, will no doubt in time find comfort in his great legacy of faith, love and charity.

For now, however, there is nothing truer than to say that, indeed, we lost a giant.

With warm regards,

George S. Tsandikos
Chairman
The passing of Michael E. Jaharis, 87, on February 17, 2016 at his home in Manhattan shook the Greek American Community, the larger Greek world, as well as the American business and philanthropic communities. First and foremost, he was the indefatigable Vice President of the Archdiocesan Council of the Greek Orthodox Archdiocese of America, an inspiring Founder of the Archbishop Iakovos Leadership 100 Endowment Fund, the innovative Founder of Faith: An Endowment for Orthodoxy and Hellenism, and a devoted Archon of the Ecumenical Patriarchate.

Jaharis was not famous in the usual calculations of our celebrity and politicized society. He was far too serious and focused on the values that informed his life to aspire to that sort of fame. Instead, he steadily pursued his personal, professional and business interests, taking advantage of the opportunities that came his way. He was born in the Chicago suburb of Evanston, Illinois on July 16, 1928, the son of Greek immigrant parents from the village of Agia Paraskevi on the Greek Island of Mytilene (Lesbos). His father, Michael, had originally come to Boston in 1908 but returned to Greece to marry, coming back to America with his bride, Katherine, and settling in the Chicago area. Like many other such immigrants, he operated a restaurant for many years.

The man who was to become a legendary businessman, philanthropist and Church leader began his academic preparation at Carroll College in Waukesha, Wisconsin, earning a B.A. degree in 1950. After graduation, he was drafted into the U.S. Army, attaining the rank of sergeant during the Korean War. It was then that his life began to take another turn when he was assigned to a Medical Corps unit in Zell am See, Austria, where he helped run the unit’s medical and pharmaceutical supply management. After leaving the Army, this very training prepared him for a career path that began with becoming a sales representative for Miles Laboratories in Chicago, which he pursued while attending DePaul University College of Law at night, earning a Juris Doctor degree. He served as Vice President and Director of the Ethical Drug Division at Miles from 1961 to 1972, when he became President and CEO of Key Pharmaceuticals. At Key, he led the development of such products as Theo-Dur, the nation’s best-selling asthma remedy, and the Nitro-Dur nitroglycerine, the first major delivery of medicine through the skin. Sales skyrocketed. This marked the beginning of a half century in which Jaharis re-engineered existing drugs to create and successfully sell more refined and effective products.

Jaharis then successfully negotiated the sale of Key to the Schering-Plough Corporation for more than $600 million in 1986. In 1988, he founded Kos Pharmaceuticals, Inc., named for the Greek island of Kos, birthplace of Hippocrates, which became known for its advances in cardiovascular drug therapies sold under the names of Niaspan, Advicor and Simcor. In 2006, he successfully sold Kos to Abbot Laboratories for $3.7 billion. After the sale of Kos, he formed an investment firm, Vatera Healthcare...
Partners, which focused on strategic investments in health care companies working on drug treatments in areas like pulmonary and infectious diseases. He also co-founded Arisaph Pharmaceuticals. Even after all his great success in these many endeavors, he kept on working from the offices of his family foundation.

His devotion to the Greek Orthodox Church and his Hellenic Heritage more than accompanied his rise to success in business. They became the expression of a man of principle, deep faith and commitment to humanity. His generosity to the Archdiocese, the Ecumenical Patriarchate, Leadership 100 and the Faith Endowment, along with his support of the Orthodox Christian Mission Center and of the rebuilding of St. Nicholas Church, destroyed in the terrorist attack of September 11, 2001, which will reopen as the St. Nicholas Greek Orthodox National Shrine in 2017, are testimony to his great devotion to Hellenism.

Furthermore, Jaharis never forgot the centrality of education to the advancement of society, true to Hellenic principles, and gave generous charitable contributions to DePaul University College of Law, Columbia University Medical Center and Weill Cornell Medical College of Cornell University and to Tufts University School of Medicine. He received an Honorary Doctor of Public Service degree from Tufts and the Crown Award from Columbia University Medical.

The list goes on, “impossible to enumerate,” in the words of Archbishop Demetrios at his funeral on February 20. “He was a wonderful, brilliant example for his family,” he said. That family, known and loved by his beloved Church and the Greek Community, consisted not only of his devoted wife and life partner, but of his son, Dr. Steven Jaharis and his wife, Elaine, his daughter, Kathryn Jaharis and his five grandchildren. They will carry his legacy of good works through The Jaharis Family Foundation.

Michael Jaharis’s many accomplishments were heralded from the New York Times to The National Herald, from the Orthodox Observer to many of the publications of the cultural organizations, educational institutions and other entities he supported over his lifetime, each emphasizing an aspect of his greatness, whether as a business pioneer, the great humanitarian of the Greek American Community, the great benefactor of the Church, the cultural ambassador of Hellenism, of the great philanthropist of education. He was, in reality, all of these things and in all ways, but the true measure of this man of great mind, heart and spirit was in his good character.
REFLECTIONS ON THE LIFE AND LEGACY OF MICHAEL E. JAHARIS

“Michael Jaharis was a giant among men. His advice in our discussions as Founders of Leadership 100 was always on how we could best preserve the legacy of Archbishop Iakovos and make sure that we never slip from our original purpose of helping the Greek Orthodox Archdiocese of America.”

Arthur C. Anton
Founder & Chairman Emeritus

“Mike was not only a close friend of many years but also a truly impressive man of great achievement and wide influence who spoke plain truth. His generosity to the Church that he so loved, to Leadership 100 and to so many causes could not be matched because it came from his great heart. He will be missed.”

John Payiavlas
Chairman Emeritus

“Michael Jaharis was a giant in the Hellenic American Community. His devotion and dedication to the Greek Orthodox Archdiocese, to Leadership 100 and to countless organizations was unmatched and inspirational. He embodied the term “generosity of spirit”. He was warm, understated and unfailingly generous. Michael had the unique talent of looking beyond himself, focusing instead on the needs of others. His vocabulary did not have the phrase, ‘I can’t do it.’ His memory will be eternal.”

Stephen G. Yeonas
Chairman Emeritus

“For me, Mike was a cherished friend, and also a mentor, who by example taught all of us what it means to be a true Christian and a true Hellene.”

Constantine G. Caras
Chairman Emeritus

“I knew Michael Jaharis for some 30 years. He was not only a committed person and committed leader to the Greek Orthodox Church, but was able to work with His Eminence Archbishop Demetrios to help him guide the Church over many years. His love for the Archbishop and love for the Church was something special. It made the Church the very best it could be.”

Charles H. Cotros
Chairman Emeritus

“While so many pay tribute to the great philanthropy and great business success of Michael Jaharis, my thoughts go back over 40 years to a friendship and relationship that was warm and caring. His support of Archbishop Iakovos for whom I worked over that time and his continued support for Archbishop Demetrios were marvelous to behold. He truly was a mighty pillar of our beloved Greek Orthodox Church and his great legacy will endure.”

Paulette Poulos
Executive Director

“Michael was my best friend for more than 50 years. We always worked together for the unity of our beloved Church. He gave all his time and energy right up to the very end of his amazing life to make sure that the Greek Orthodox Church continued to thrive and fulfill its mission. I loved him dearly and will miss him always.”

The 25th Annual Leadership 100 Conference, which convened from February 18 to 21, 2016 at The Phoenician in Scottsdale, Arizona, began with a Trisagion Service on Thursday, February 18, conducted by His Eminence Metropolitan Gerasimos of San Francisco in memory of Michael E. Jaharis, a Founder of Leadership 100, Vice President of the Archdiocesan Council and leading businessman and philanthropist who passed away in the Lord on February 17.

The Opening Forum was led by the new President of Hellenic College/Holy Cross School of Theology, the V. Rev. Christopher T. Metropulos and was followed by the traditional Bible Study conducted by His Eminence Metropolitan Savas of Pittsburgh in place of Archbishop Demetrios, who returned directly to New York to be with the Jaharis family.

The Thursday afternoon Hellenism Forum featured a special presentation on the Benaki Museum by Pavlos Yeroulanos, who served as Greece’s Minister for Culture and Tourism, and included two rooms of Exhibits from the Benaki Museum, a prelude to a tour of the United States. The Exhibits opened with an Agiasmos Service conducted by Metropolitan Gerasimos.

Some 375 members and guests attended the event, which included the annual meeting of the General Assembly on Friday, February 19, following meetings of the Executive Committee and Board of Trustees. Chris Caras of Palo Verdes Estates, California, a long-time member of Leadership 100 and outgoing member of the Executive Committee and Board of Trustees was recognized for his distinguished service at the General Assembly.

Another highlight of the Conference was the “Symphony at Sunset” concert conducted by Leadership 100 member Peter Tiboris on Thursday evening, through the generous support of Michael and Kay Johnson. Tiboris dedicated the concert to Michael Jaharis, noting that Archbishop Demetrios accompanied by Jaharis, often visited him backstage at his concerts at Carnegie Hall in New York City.

The program on Friday included a lecture delivered by the Rev. Dr. John Chryssavgis, Archdeacon of the Ecumenical Throne, on the forthcoming historically significant Holy and Great Council of the Orthodox Church to take place in the area of Chania, Crete, June 16-27, 2016.

The Business Forum, also on Friday, featured a prominent member of Leadership 100, James M. Orphanides, Partner and President of Centurion Holdings LLC. The Saturday Forum was conducted as a dialogue between Mike Manatos, a member of the Executive Committee and the featured speaker, Eleni Tsakopoulos-Kounalakis, former U.S. Ambassador to Hungary, who has published a book on her experiences in that post. Golf and Tennis Tournaments and Awards, and a Walk/Run, originated by Mike Manatos, filled out the day’s activities. A program of youth activities was organized by Maria Behrakis and Elaine Cotronakis and included a session on the work of International Orthodox Christian Charities (IOCC) and on iconography, the latter organized by the staff of the Benaki Museum.

At the Grand Banquet on Saturday evening, the Archbishop Iakovos Leadership 100 Award for Excellence was presented to the Benaki Museum, accepted by Yeroulanos, and to Ambassador Tsakopoulos-Kounalakis. Prior to the Banquet, new and fulfilled members were recognized with the presentation of Icons and Obelisks.
The Rev. Dr. John Chryssavgis, Archdeacon of the Ecumenical Throne, who also serves as theological consultant in the Office of Inter-Orthodox, Ecumenical and Interfaith Relations, spoke on the subject: “Toward the Holy and Great Council: Personal Reflections of the Forthcoming Historical Assembly in Crete” on Friday, February 19, 2016.

The Holy and Great Council, the first such assembly in 1,200 years, was originally to take place at the Church of Hagia Irene in Istanbul, but political developments stemming from Syria’s four-year civil war necessitated a change of venue to the Orthodox Academy of Crete in Kolymbari of Chania, Crete, from June 16 to 27 in 2016.

The Synaxis of the Primates of the Orthodox Churches, meeting at the invitation of His All Holiness Ecumenical Patriarch Bartholomew at Chambesy, Switzerland, January 21 to 26, 2016, finalized the texts for the Council. The items officially approved for referral to and adoption by the Holy and Great Council are: The Mission of the Orthodox Church in the Contemporary World, The Orthodox Diaspora, Autonomy and its Manner of Proclamation, The Sacrament of Marriage and its Impediments, the Significance of Fasting and its Application Today, and Relations of the Orthodox Church with the Rest of the Christian World.

The Holy and Great Council has been on the table for discussion and preparation since 1961, although there were earlier proposals for such a Council in the 1920s and 1930s, according to Dr. Chryssavgis. It will be the first time ever that representatives from all fourteen independent Orthodox Churches have gathered. Patriarchs, Archbishops and Bishops from the fourteen so-called autocephalous Orthodox Churches, including those for all the ancient Patriarchates except Rome, will attend. Decision-making is by consensus, rather than by the imposition of any one Church leader.

In his remarks, Dr. Chryssavgis said most scholars hold that there were only seven Ecumenical Councils, the seventh having been held in 787 A.D., while others hold there was an eighth Ecumenical Council in 879 and many others in subsequent centuries. However, he pointed out, that what constitutes an Ecumenical Council is not determined in canon law, and that every council is a confirmation and extension of previous councils.

Dr. Chryssavgis further emphasized that the overriding purpose of the Holy and Great Council is to display unity and that one should not expect dramatic announcements as in the Roman Catholic Vatican II to which it has been compared. In Orthodoxy, he noted, no one bishop, such as the Ecumenical Patriarch, can impose primacy without collegiality and that a council cannot be an “imposition from above or a revolution from below.” Past Councils, he observed, focused on internal issues, on how the Church was to function. The significance of the Council as a historical event is in reinforcing conciliarity. “It is what bishops are supposed to do.” While he decried the rule of consensus rather than majority rule as in past Councils, he said that once assembled, the Council may well deal with crises at hand with the opportunity to reveal the heart and mystery of the Church to the world.

While also expressing disappointment in some of the items on the original agenda being revised to exclude reconsideration, such as autocephaly, a common calendar, marriage impediments and rules of fasting, Dr. Chryssavgis quoted Archbishop Anastasios of Albania, who said that the convening of the Council was “about our humility, inefficiency and poverty…offered to God, who alone can transform the Church.”

In conclusion, Dr. Chryssavgis said that the Council would address normalizing the “canonical spaces” of the Orthodox Churches in the global Diaspora with overlapping jurisdictions by confirming the role of the Assemblies of Canonical Orthodox Bishops toward Orthodox unity, reinvigorating dialogue with non-Orthodox Christian Churches and other faiths and, again quoting Archbishop Anastasios, “Telling people in a troubled world that we care, that we cannot remain silent in dark times and that we can have light.”

Dr. Chryssavgis was born in Australia and received his degree in Theology from the University of Athens. He completed his doctoral studies at the University of Oxford. He co-founded St. Andrew’s Theological College in Sydney, where he served as Sub-Dean and taught Patristics. He also taught as Professor of Theology at Holy Cross School of Theology in the United States and directed the Religious Studies Program at Hellenic College. The author of numerous publications, he edited the three-volume series of the Ecumenical Patriarch’s collected works. His other publications include Dialogue of Love: Breaking the Silence of Centuries and Primacy in the Church: The Office of Primate and the Authority of Councils.
To the esteemed George S. Tsandikos and distinguished members of the Leadership 100 Executive Committee, our beloved in the Lord: May God's grace and peace be with you.

It is with paternal joy and gladness that we communicate with you in order to express to you our heartfelt gratitude and appreciation for your donation of $250,000, which you have so graciously offered to the Ecumenical Patriarchate for the convening of the Holy and Great Council.

Indeed, your benevolent gesture is in support of an event which all of us have been anticipating for some time. As you might expect, this Council will certainly present to our faithful as well as to the entire world a strong narrative about who we are as Orthodox Christians and what we believe. It will, therefore, in this sense, serve as an expression of self. However, even more so than that, one of the greatest achievements in our own personal opinion concerns the way in which the Orthodox Church functions as a whole.

What we mean by this is that the Orthodox Church in our present day and age has been able to successfully function within and maintain a synodal system on a local level, even after centuries of persecution and martyrdom. The Ecumenical Patriarchate, for instance, has hierarchs who travel to Istanbul from all the ends of the earth on a monthly basis throughout the year in order to deliberate synodally on contemporary issues. As it concerns the Orthodox Church collectively, though, and how we function together, the same does not necessarily apply, and to a large extent this indicates a substantial reason that the convening the Holy and Great Council is much needed today.

Therefore, by God's grace and with your filial love, the Orthodox hierarchs who will meet this June in Crete will give flesh to the meaning of the term metanoia by collectively coming to terms with the accomplishments and the shortcomings of the past, the inner change that is needed and the spiritual orientation that is greatly desired. In this way, then – that is, in this new life together – the spirit of the Ecumenical Councils will be recovered and henceforth retained and sustained as a new existential attitude. The preparatory process for this Council has itself been an indication of this, as it has produced so many fruits and has advanced Orthodox unity in an exceptional manner.

As the convocation of the Holy and Great Council approaches, then, we invite you and your families to pray for the period leading up to the Council as well as its sessions. Again, we thank you wholeheartedly for your support of the Council and convey to you and to your families our Patriarchal blessings and prayers for Holy Week and Pascha. We entreat our loving Master to multiply unto you His mercy, peace and love, granting you as well every good and perfect gift from above.

At the Ecumenical Patriarchate, the fifteenth of April, 2016

Your fervent supplicant before God,

* BARTHOLOMEW
Archbishop of Constantinople-New Rome and Ecumenical Patriarch

The new President of Hellenic College/Holy Cross School of Theology, the V. Rev. Christopher T. Metropulos, spoke at the Opening Forum on Thursday, February 18, 2016 on the strategic need and reason to invest in the school. He opened with the rhetorical question; “We have a great and tremendous legacy but what are we going to do with it?”

Fr. Metropulos, who served as a parish priest for 35 years, maintained that Hellenic College/Holy Cross, as the only full-accredited Orthodox Christian college in the Western hemisphere and the only Greek Orthodox School of Theology in the United States, had a critical role to play in raising the next generation of Orthodox Christians, a calling not only to train ordained clergy but knowledgeable lay people. He said that in the age of the Internet, we must look ahead not to change the theology of the Church but to change its methodology, raising the question of how we preach the Word of God and inspire people in this new situation.

While the school is anticipating a 10% increase in enrollment and more and more young people from all Orthodox jurisdictions are choosing an environment of prayer, fellowship and spiritual culture and turning their backs on secularism and moral relativism, the school is being challenged to provide more space and is in the process of developing a master plan. He acknowledged the continuing support of Leadership 100 for scholarship aid, the Archbishop Iakovos Library and Learning Resource Center, technology infrastructure, support for the Office of Vocation and Ministry and a world-class fitness center.

Fr. Metropulos announced the largest single gift in the history of school from Leadership 100 member George Kostas of Houston, Texas, a 38,000 square-foot student center with modern technology that will include the ability to broadcast and televise with a state of the art kitchen donated by Harris and Chris Pappas, the latter also a member of Leadership 100, as well as classrooms donated by Chairman Emeritus Charles and Connie Cotros and a welcome center donated by Leadership 100 members Helen Carlos and Ron Hilliard. In anticipation of the ground-breaking in September of 2016, he has a goal of raising a $2-million endowment.

Fr. Metropulos, nonetheless, said the challenge remains and that in order to fulfill the school’s mission, which is the intellectual, educational and spiritual center of the Greek Orthodox Archdiocese of America, more facilities will need to be built, course offerings will need to be expanded, continuing education will need to be offered to clergy and long distance learning to the laity. The time is critical, he said, as parish priests are needed now more than ever before with the mean age of Orthodox clergy 59-60 years. If this is not addressed vigorously, it could spell disaster in the next 10 years, he maintained.

Fr. Metropulos ended his talk with the charge that Hellenic College/Holy Cross is our hope and our future as a Church.
PAVLOS YEROULANOS SPEAKS ON POWERFUL NARRATIVE OF GREEK HISTORY AND CULTURE BROUGHT TOGETHER AT THE BENAKI MUSEUM

Pavlos Yeroulanos, Greece’s former Minister for Culture and Tourism and the great-grandson of Antonis Benakis, founder of the Benaki Museum of Athens, spoke on Thursday, February 18, 2016 on the powerful narrative of Greek history and culture as represented in the mission and collections of the world-renowned museum. The address was in connection with the Benaki Museum exhibits, mounted at the Museum’s expense at the Conference, which comprised 40-50 exact replicas from the Museum illustrating Greek art from the pre-historic to the contemporary period, a replica of the notable St. Nicholas Icon, and the first ever exhibition of the original album of photographs from the first modern Olympic Games held in Athens in 1896. The Exhibits opened with an Agiasmos (blessing) by His Eminence Metropolitan Gerasimos of San Francisco, the Conference host.

In a stirring and wide-ranging talk, Yeroulanos opened with the proposition that every nation and its people have a powerful narrative of who they are, what made them into who they are and how who they are will shape them into who they will become, raising the question of what is the Greek narrative. As the only museum in the world that covers Greek history and culture from pre-historic times to today “that builds a coherent, continuous history of the Greeks”, he said it is incumbent upon the Benaki Museum to ask “how it is helping Greece build a narrative that is so strong that it can help Greece through times of crisis and give it direction.”

Yeroulanos then outlined the history of Greek civilization moving backwards from the formation of the Modern Greek state, relatively young in the world, which was very much influenced by Western powers and philhellenes “eager to find the nation that gave them humanity and the foundation of their own Renaissance as Ancient Greece represented an ideal for the West and the new Greek state seemed like an opportunity to revive it.” He pointed out that this became burdensome for generations of young Greeks trying to fit that narrative and limited the full historical reality that gave the Greeks their identity. He then traced the history of Greece as taught in the schools from “a place between myth and reality” to the first Greek civilizations of the Cycladic, Minoan and Mycenaean and on to the significant place of Homer, the “Glory of Athens”, Alexander the Great, the rise of Byzantium and the Greek Revolution.

However, these achievements seem to have disappeared, according to official accounts, when the Romans took over Greece, with the rise of the Ottoman Empire, and after the foundation of the Modern Greek state, he observed. “With such a fragmented history and such a divided recent past, the links between our forefathers and ourselves become weaker and weaker and the time between us and them is moving further and further away.”

As a result, Greek identity is sought in the Greek language, in religion and even in DNA, that has the result of excluding many Greeks who don’t speak the language, who are other than Orthodox Christian or who are of a different ethnicity. All of these are in fact part of modern Hellenism, Yeroulanos contended, and all of these must be included “or the narrative of our homeland fails.” He also pointed to the many non-Greeks and philhellenes who helped build the Modern Greek state, and to the many modern Greeks whose ancestry is from other ethnicities. “They were not Greek but chose to be Greek,” he said.

Yeroulanos said it is the mission of the Benaki Museum to fill in the gaps in Greek history and culture. “The light of Greek culture was powerful, creative and inspiring to others during the darkest of times and that makes our links to our forefathers far more powerful,” he said. He maintained that even though Greek culture may never reach the peak that it did in Ancient Athens (as probably no culture ever will) and that while Greece will never be as large as Byzantium, there has never been a period in Greek culture and history that has not been brilliant, and that if that is true, we can be confident that our culture today will continue to evolve in a brilliant manner in a narrative within which all Greeks can identify.

With five museums now open to the public and more museums and cultural centers to be opened as collectors continue, as in the beginning, to add to the monumental contribution of Antonis Benakis and bequeath their collections to the Benaki Museum as a depository of trust, the Benaki is taking its mission and its message around the world with major acclaimed exhibitions.

Yeroulanos concluded by stating emphatically with regard to Greece and Greeks, “that even though we go through periods of trials, we are confident that we are far more than people who come from a glorious past, we are people dedicated to keeping our values alive as long as we are alive, standing as long as we stand, true to our tradition and for the benefit of humanity. This is the mission of the Benaki Museum and this is the most powerful narrative I know.”

At the Grand Banquet on Saturday, February 20, Yeroulanos accepted on behalf of the Benaki Museum the Archbishop Iakovos Leadership 100 Award for Excellence. A member of Leadership 100, he thanked many members of Leadership 100 for their support.
James M. Orphanides, a prominent member of Leadership 100, who became a Partner and the President of Centurion Holdings LLC in January of 2010, spoke on “the American Dream” at the Business Forum on Friday, February 19, 2016. He also addressed the young professionals on opportunities in the financial industry.

Orphanides said that all in attendance were part of “the American Dream” in being benefactors of their immigrant forbears who sought a better life but he described what he called an “American report card’ that showed that dream slipping since the recession of 2008.

The main factors for this economic decline, he pointed out, were $900 billion in student loans with a default rate of more than 50%, $75 billion in annual “food stamp” costs for 47 million Americans, a federal debt of $18.5 trillion, the printing of money that causes devaluation increasing from $400 billion rising to $3.5 trillion over the past ten years; an annual increase since 2010 of 25% in health care costs, declining labor force participation from 86 million in 2008 to 82 million today, workers’ share of the economy slipping by 40% since 2008, median family income declining from $54,000 in 2008 to $51,000 today, and home ownership falling from 68 million in 2008 to 64 million today.

He said that while there were government plans to deal with the Great Depression, the consequences of the 2008 recession have not been solved by the government or by greater consumption or by companies that have not grown revenue but cut on the expense side by laying off workers and utilizing technology to replace them. Part of the solution, he advocated, was to incentivize businesses through tax breaks and tax deductions to hire more workers, which can then create more taxpayers, and for individuals to take charge of their own destiny through conservation and cooperation recognizing that individual sacrifices were necessary to recovery.

Orphanides served as Chairman Emeritus of First American Title Insurance Company of New York and a Director until the company merged with its Parent, First American Title Insurance Company in November 2010. He worked for First American since 1992 in key executive positions and from 1996 through 2007 he was President, CEO and Chairman of the Board. Prior to joining First American, Orphanides was a Principal and President of Preferred Land Title Services, Inc. from 1982-1992. He was an Executive at Commonwealth Land Title Insurance Company from 1979-1982 and an Executive at Chicago Title Insurance Company from 1972-1979. He is currently the Chairman and CEO of USRealty.com.

Orphanides has been actively involved in many not-for-profit organizations. He sits on the Boards of the Foundation for Medical Evaluation and Early Detection, Citizen Budget Commission, and CUNY TV Foundation. He is also a member of the Hellenic American Bankers Association (HABA) and the Economic Club of New York; TPC Golf Club at Jasna Polana in Princeton, New Jersey; the Nassau Club in Princeton, New Jersey, The Williams Club, now a part of the Princeton Club of New York and The Metropolitan Club of New York. He received a B.A. Degree from Heidelberg College and an M.A. Degree from Queens College of New York. Orphanides has three children and currently resides in Princeton, New Jersey with his wife Nora.
Eleni Tsakopoulos Kounalakis, a longtime member of Leadership 100 with her husband Markos, engaged in a dialogue on international relations and domestic politics led by Mike Manatos, a member of the Executive Committee, at the Saturday Forum on February 20, 2016. She discussed her recently published memoir, Madame Ambassador: Three Years of Diplomacy, Dinner Parties, and Democracy in Budapest. She served as U.S. Ambassador to Hungary from January 7, 2010 to July 20, 2013. She was the first Greek American woman to serve as a U.S. Ambassador, and at 43, one of the youngest.

The memoir, released on May 5, 2015, recounts her experiences being vetted for the position with no background in diplomacy, attending an ambassador “charm school” and an intensive training session. However, in taking up her assignment in the former Soviet satellite, she felt that nothing could have prepared her for the realities of life in Hungary.

A property developer in California where she served as President of AKT Development Corporation, she has been politically active, serving as a delegate to the Democratic National Convention four times. She and her husband Markos founded two university chairs in Hellenic Studies, at Georgetown and Stanford Universities, and a lecture series at the Woodrow Wilson International Center for Scholars. She has been awarded the Medal of St. Paul by the Greek Orthodox Archdiocese of America.

In a wide-ranging dialogue, the former Ambassador described her upbringing as part of a tight-knit Greek Orthodox American Community in Sacramento, California. Her father, Angelo Tsakopoulos, the pioneering business leader and philanthropist, first introduced her to Leadership 100, where he is a prominent member, when she was 25 years old. She credited the Greek Orthodox Church with instilling in her a philosophy of love that became the organizing principle of her life in leadership, politics and diplomacy and credited Leadership 100 as the epicenter of Hellenic culture in America.

She chose to be known as Ambassador Kounalakis when taking the post in Hungary, a U.S. ally, a member of the European Union and NATO, serving at a time when the country was going through a difficult transition of constitutional change that transformed its civil society with restrictions on individual freedoms, law, business and the media, creating strains with the United States. Reflecting on the consequences for America’s role in the world, she said that while democracy is difficult to achieve and maintain, advancing it through the fundamental principle of the rule of law must continue to be advocated. She also addressed the financial crisis and refugee crises in Greece and Europe as unresolved but with progress being made in defining the parameters of the problems.

The former Ambassador was presented with the Archbishop Iakovos Leadership 100 Award for Excellence for her public service and in upholding Hellenic values at the Grand Banquet on Saturday, February 20, 2016.
Chris W. Caras of Palos Verdes Estates, California was commended for distinguished service to the Leadership 100 Board of Trustees at the General Assembly on Friday, February 19, 2016. A member of Leadership 100 since 1996, he served on the Board from 2005 to 2014 and on the Executive Committee from 2008 to 2014. In presenting him with a plaque acknowledging his service, George S. Tsandikos praised him for his deep devotion to Leadership 100 and the Greek Orthodox Church and for sharing his knowledge and expertise. In attendance were his wife of 57 years, Joan, his son, Chris W. Caras, Jr., his daughters Rhea Rendon and Stacy J. Tempereau, and his grandson Christopher Rendon.

An Archon of the Ecumenical Patriarchate since 2001 and a member of AHEPA since 1965, Caras is a widely acclaimed real estate developer and general contractor, as well as a noted philanthropist. He graduated with a degree in accounting from UCLA before embarking on a highly successful business career, during which he became a steward and supporter of many Greek Orthodox Churches throughout California. He was mainly responsible for the St. Andrew Room at St. Barbara Church in Santa Barbara, the Baptismal and Bishop Throne at St. George Church in Palm Desert and the Education Center and Bride's Room at St. Katherine Church in Redondo Beach, where he served as Chairman of the Building Committee during construction in 1972 and currently serves as Vice Chairman of the Planning Committee and member of the Campaign Committee for the renovation of the entire church campus. With his wife Joan, he established an endowment fund for education at St. Katherine's and an endowment fund for scholarships at the parochial school of St. Nicholas Church in Northridge.

Caras served on the first parish council at St. Sophia Cathedral in Los Angeles where he is a life member and benefactor, and on the Board of Trustees of the Patriarch Athenagoras Orthodox Institute in San Francisco.

In addition to his wide-ranging support of churches, Caras served on the Board of Trustees for Providence Little Company Mary Hospital in Torrance for 14 years where he was a major donor for the new NICU wing and children's waiting room in emergency. He was given the Trustee Emeritus Award for that service. He was also a founding donor of Norris Theatre for the Performing Arts and a donor for the Palos Verdes Art Center. Caras served on the Board of the American Cancer Society-Beach Cities and as a member of Al Malaikah Shrine since 1975.

Chris and Joan Caras were awarded the Medal of St. Paul in 2015 for their continued support, the highest honor given by the Greek Orthodox Archdiocese of America. In addition to their son and two daughters, the couple have seven grandchildren. The entire extended family resides in the South Bay Area of Los Angeles where they were raised.
The Symphony at Sunset presented on Thursday, February 18, 2016 through the generosity of Leadership 100 members Michael and Kay Johnson was acclaimed by members and guests of Leadership 100. It marked the third time Peter Tiboris, Founder, General Director and Artistic Director of MidAmerica Productions and Festival of the Aegean, had performed at a Leadership 100 Conference. On this occasion, he conducted The Phoenix Symphony featuring Steven Moeckel, violin, and Eilana Lappalainen, soprano, and with a special performance by Theodosia Roussos, soprano and folk artist.

Eilana Lappalainen is a Finnish-Canadian dramatic soprano and one of the most respected interpreters of Strauss’ Salome, which she has performed at opera houses throughout the world. She has also been acclaimed for performances in other leading operas, such as Lohengrin, Lulu, Der Rosenkavalier, Arabella, Jenufa, Madame Butterfly, Tosca, I Pagliacci, La Traviata, Turnandot, Don Giovanni and Aida. Besides performances on international stages, she has taken on extensive responsibilities as General Director of the Greek Opera Studio and Berlin Opera Studio, Artistic Director for the Opera Division of the Young Artists Festival Bayreuth, Associate Artistic Director of the International Festival of the Aegean and Artistic Administrator for MidAmerica Productions.

The acclaimed violinist Steven Moeckel performs regularly as soloist, chamber musician and as concertmaster of The Phoenix Symphony. He has appeared as soloist and concert artist throughout Europe, South America, and the United States. Known for his artful interpretations, rich sound, and technical prowess, his extensive command of the concerto repertoire includes the works of Elgar, Tchaikovsky, Mozart, Beethoven, Sibelius, Berg, and Ysaye. He held the Concertmaster position with The Tucson Symphony Orchestra from 2002-2008.

Theodosia Roussos is an oboist, soprano and folk artist. As an oboist she has performed with the Boston Philharmonic and Mozart Classical Orchestra. As a folk artist, she has performed with Jackson Browne, Butch Morris and Niko Syropoulos. She regularly performs with her duo alongside guitarist Henry Garf, and as the lead singer of the Greek folk band Rozalia. She has a B.A. from UCLA and is currently attending Oberlin Conservatory of Music.

The Phoenix Symphony is Arizona’s largest performing arts organization. Founded in 1947 as a part-time orchestra in a city of fewer than 100,000 people, The Symphony has grown to become Arizona’s only full-time symphony orchestra. The mission of The Phoenix Symphony is to provide the joy of music as a catalyst in helping Arizona to become the best place in America to work and live. Each season, The Phoenix Symphony offers awe-inspiring Classics and Pops, one-of-a-kind Specials and dynamic family concerts in downtown Phoenix and throughout central Arizona. The Symphony’s Education and Community Engagement programs reach over 108,000 individuals each year with programs that ensure that any individual – regardless of means or background – is given equal opportunity to develop skills and grow through imaginative, high quality musical experiences.

Dear Mr. Tsatari and Ms. Fyfe,

A path set before me is not defined by the obstacles we encounter, but by the hope we carry within. In the words of Proverbs 13:5, "Hope deferred makes the heart sick, but a quickened hope is a tree of life."

Thank you for your continued support and partnership with the Greek Orthodox Metropolis of San Francisco. Your dedication and commitment to our community has been a cornerstone in our growth and development. Together, we have achieved many milestones and continue to strive towards our shared goals.

May the Light of Christ continue to shine within you, guiding your steps and illuminating your hearts.

With love and prayers,

Dear Leadership 100 Member,

With great pride, I wish to offer my sincere gratitude for your unwavering support and generous contributions to Leadership 100. Through your commitment to the Church and to Leadership 100, the Department of Youth Ministry, Pastoral, and Educational Services is empowered to promote and enrich the relationships of the Greek Orthodox Archdiocese with youngsters from around the country and to young American converts.

Among the many tangibles delivered by the Message of Leadership 100, the most tangibly meaningful to the participants is the latest iteration of the Message that bears the name of the Synaxis of the Holy and Great Council. Reviewing a College of Constitutional and Commissions, and its Message, I am proud to say that this Message, or rather volume, is made possible by the involvement of the leadership of Leadership 100.

It is my hope that you will find this volume both enriching and a worthy companion to the Message of Leadership 100. I wish to extend my warmest congratulations to the Synaxis of the Holy and Great Council.

I look forward to meeting you at Synaxis.

Yours sincerely,

460 5th Avenue, Suite 640
New York, NY 10017

Dear Mr. Pascou and Mr. Tsakanikas,

Thank you for the recent grant from Leadership 100 for our Seraphim National Youth Service Leadership Development Initiative. We are in receipt of your check dated March 17, 2016. The proceeds of $1,000 will be utilized as a gift aid for the subsequent Seraphim National Youth Service Leadership Development Conference.

This past summer, youth who participated in our initial pilot Seraphim National Youth Service Leadership Development Conference this year. Ms. Pascou, I look forward to continuing this effort in this year’s Seraphim National Youth Service Leadership Development Conference. I hope even more Orthodox youth become equipped to engage in philanthropy and charity from an Orthodox Christian perspective.

Thank you again for your steadfast support for the mission of IOCC through this gift.

Yours in Christ,

Constantine M. Trigalakis
Executive Director of IOCC
The Board of Trustees elected George S. Tsandikos to a second two-year term as Chairman, commencing in 2016. Argyris Vassiliou continues in his term as Vice Chairman, Kassandra Romas as Secretary and Thomas G. Jordan as Treasurer.

Demetrios Logothetis, Metropolis of Chicago, and Mike Manatos, Metropolis of New Jersey, were elected to the Executive Committee. Logothetis serves as Chairman of the Audit Committee and is a member of Holy Trinity Church, Chicago, Illinois. Manatos is Chairman of the Event Planning Committee and a member of St. George Church in Bethesda, Maryland. They are both Archons of the Ecumenical Patriarchate.

Logothetis is Senior Partner of Ernst and Young with 33 years of experience providing audit and other services, including merger and acquisition due diligence to a broad spectrum of public and privately-held clients. He has extensive experience managing and coordinating global client engagements and served as Vice Chair of Global Accounts. He is a graduate of DePaul University Business School and received an MBA from University of Chicago.

Manatos is Vice President of Manatos & Manatos, a public affairs/public policy firm. He follows in the footsteps of his grandfather who was the first Greek American to work on Capitol Hill and in the White House, as administrative assistant to Presidents John F. Kennedy and Lyndon Johnson, as well his father, Andrew Manatos who was the highest-ranking Greek-American in the Carter Administration, serving as Assistant Secretary of Commerce for Legislation. He graduated from Princeton University in 1990 from the Woodrow Wilson School of Public Policy and International Affairs, with a major in Political Science and minor in Hellenic Studies.

Michael Psaros of the Direct Archdiocesan District was elected to the Board of Trustees. He is a member of the Archdiocesan Council, an Archon of the Ecumenical Patriarchate and a member of Church of Our Saviour, Rye, New York. He is Co-Founder and Co-Managing Partner of KPS Capital Partners, LP, and a member of its Investment Committee. He received a BSBA from Georgetown University in 1989 and attended Sofia University in Tokyo, Japan.

Other members of the Board of Trustees, whose terms expired in 2016, and who were reelected to an additional three-year term were:

1. Maria Allwin (Direct Archdiocesan District)

In Memoriam

- Kay Alevizos – 8/9/2014, Weston, MA
- Michael Jaharis – 2/17/2016, New York, NY
- Jack T. Mitsakopoulos – 12/28/2015, Chicago, IL
- Roland G. Matthews – 1/3/2016, Laguna Niguel, CA
- Dean Clement Pappas – 4/30/2016, Philadelphia, PA
- John Staurulakis – 10/13/2014, Boca Raton, FL
Jack Mitsakopoulos, 86, member of the Board of Trustees of Leadership 100 from 1994 to 1996 and from 2000 to 2010, passed away on December 28, 2015. He was an Archon of the Ecumenical Patriarchate and a member of Annunciation Cathedral, Chicago, Illinois. The former owner, President and Chairman of the Board of the legendary Chicago Fish House, one of the largest wholesale/retail seafood distributors in the country, founded by Harry, Gregory and Theodore Mitsakopoulos, Jack's father, in 1930, he had kept the family business together at the age of 17 when his father put him in charge. The business was sold in 1995.

Jack was a widely admired and active member of the Greek Orthodox Church, generously supporting and participating in numerous activities in Chicago and nationwide. A close friend, Eleni Bousis, a member of the Leadership 100 Board of Trustees, said, “He donated with love and humility to every cause. He would always say that we had to help every organization and church without any hesitation. If we don’t give, nothing will exist for the next generation. He was happy, positive and optimistic and practiced Christianity on a daily basis.”

Jack organized the Golf and Tennis Tournaments and Awards at numerous Leadership 100 Annual Leadership 100 Conferences.

He was the loving husband of the late Carole nee Gialamas, the loving father of Ted (Liz) Mitsakopoulos, and grandfather of Elle.
ONASSIS CULTURAL CENTER OPENS RENOVATED GALLERY

The Onassis Cultural Center opened its renovated gallery in the Olympic Tower at 645 Fifth Avenue in midtown Manhattan on March 24, 2016 with a major exhibition of ancient art, installations of contemporary art, and a variety of events and resources on site and online, dedicated to the theme of Gods and Mortals. His Eminence Archbishop Demetrios cut the ribbon opening the exhibition, accompanied by Anthony S. Papadimitriou, President of the Onassis Foundation, Aristides Baltas, Minister of Culture and Sports, Greece, Dr. Dimitrios Pandermalis, President of the Acropolis Museum, Athens, and Director of Excavations at Dion on Mount Olympus who curated the exclusive display of rare ancient artifacts from Olympus, and Amalia Cosmetatou, Executive Director of the Onassis Foundation (USA) and its Director of Cultural Affairs. The Onassis Foundation is a member of Leadership 100. George S. Tsandikos, Leadership 100 Chairman, and Paulette Poulos, Leadership 100 Executive Director were honored guests.

The exhibition, which runs from March 24 through June 18, 2016, is open to the public free of charge. Papadimitriou noted that the reopening of the gallery spaces after three years of renovation, would continue to welcome American and international visitors to a new series of art exhibitions in the “established tradition of the Onassis Cultural Center NY” continuing “to explore and present the Hellenic heritage to a wider audience.”

Contemporary art on display in the atrium of the Olympic Tower presents a commissioned video work by artist Maria Zervos titled My Half of the Sky, My Half of the Earth, images shot in the landscape of Mount Olympus with poetic texts. In addition, there are two new sound installations especially commissioned from artist Kostas Ioannidis. The work, Memory of, memory of, memory of in the foyer of the gallery reflects on how layers of meaning are placed onto the past, using poetic texts with a repertoire of sounds. In the exhibition itself, O rocky voice, shall we in that great night rejoice? frames the artifacts of the Dion exhibition with the natural soundscape of the mountain, while simulating a voyage through time and space.

AMERICAN HELLENIC INSTITUTE HONORS PETER J. PAPPAS AND NICOLAS BORNOZIS

The American Hellenic Institute (AHI) honored Peter J. Pappas, a member of the Executive Committee of Leadership 100 and Nicolas Bornozis, a distinguished member of Leadership 100, for career achievements and contributions to the Greek American Community, at its 41st Anniversary Hellenic Heritage Achievement and Public Service Awards Dinner on March 5, 2016 at the Capitol Hilton in Washington, D.C.

AHI President Nick Larigakis and AHI Foundation President Dr. Spiro Spireas presided at the event at which Pappas, Chairman of the Board of P.J.M. Holding Corp., received the AHI Hellenic Heritage Achievement Award in recognition of his entrepreneurial, philanthropic endeavors and fidelity to Hellenic causes. Bornozis, Founder, President/CEO of Capital Link, received the AHI Hellenic Heritage National Public Service Award for outstanding achievements fostering strong economic ties with the Hellenic world.

Pappas recalled his humble origins growing up in New York City along with his uncertainty as to what career path to follow but that after attending New York University, still uncertain, as time went on “things do fold out in front of you.” His company is one of the largest HVAC and mechanical contracting firms in the United States. He commended AHI Founder Gene Rossides and President Nick Larigakis for moving AHI along into its current prominence as an advocate of Hellenic causes and encouraged the young people in attendance to believe that they have a chance and that they can have a dream and carry it out in life.

Bornozis recalled his beginnings in the capital markets and international finance industry, eventually becoming CEO of a French bank in the United States. He started Capital Link, a leader in investor relations for the shipping industry, closed-end funds and companies seeking access to the U.S. and European financial markets, twenty years ago. Capital Link organizes 12 large-scale investment conferences annually in Athens, New York, London and Shanghai, attracting as many as 1,000 delegates and spurring investment and business opportunities in Greece.

Nicolas Bornozis, a member of Leadership 100 and the Founder, President/CEO of Capital Link was recognized by the International Propeller Club, Port of Piraeus, at the Yacht Club of Greece on February 18, 2016, for his contributions in strengthening the relations between Greece and the United States in the Maritime Field. George Xiradakis, President, presented him with the “1st Propeller Club of Piraeus Members Award” during the first Members’ Day Meeting for 2016.

Bornozis was further acknowledged for raising the profile of shipping in the investment community and to a wider audience. Xiradakis said, “Nicolas has played a pivotal role educating investors about the maritime sector and helping shipping companies navigate through Wall Street.”

In accepting the award, Bornozis said, “We are humbled and proud to receive this prestigious award, which further recognizes our efforts and commitment to the industry and to our clients. Capital Link is privileged to have become the ‘go-to’ destination for information and insight on shipping and the maritime sector.”

Eleni Bousis, John Calamos Honored

Eleni Bousis, member of the Leadership 100 Board of Trustees and John P. Calamos, a long-time member, were honored for their “excellence in service” at the AHEPA Midwest Family Gala on February 20, 2016, at the Hyatt Regency in Chicago.

Bousis, who received the AHEPA Academy of Achievement Award in Philanthropy, was acknowledged for her active philanthropy in the community, having founded, chaired and served on numerous philanthropic organizations. Her commitment and leadership as Chair of the Board of the Greek American Rehabilitation and Care Center in Wheeling, Illinois, was especially noted.
Her other activities include Chair of the Founding Board of New Hippocratic Research Foundation at the Robert H. Lurie Comprehensive Cancer Center at Northwestern University, Board Member of the Little City Foundation and a member of National Ladies Philoptochos Society. Governor Bruce Rauner of Illinois attended in support of her contributions to the state.

Calamos founded Calamos Investments in 1977 and is current Chairman, Chief Executive Officer and Global Co-Chief Investment Officer at Calamos Asset Management, which has grown into a diversified asset management firm with major institutional and individual clients in the United States and around the world. He was acknowledged for his leadership to ensure the legacy of Greek culture as Chairman of the National Hellenic Museum in Chicago since 2012 and for his major financial support of the institution. He is an Archon of the Ecumenical Patriarchate.

Ernie Anastos, the Emmy Award-winning anchor for Fox flagship station, WNYW in New York City and a member of Leadership 100, was presented with the Lifetime Achievement Award by the Fair Media Council at the Folio Awards Luncheon on April 22, 2016, at the Crest Hollow Country Club in Woodbury, New York. The event is Long Island’s biggest media event to recognize the best in the news industry as chosen by the public.

Anastos was acknowledged as “a legend and role model” who continues to serve the public interest. A New York Hall of Fame broadcaster, he has won more than 30 Emmy Awards and nominations and was the first and only New York TV anchor to receive the Lifetime Emmy Award, the highest honor given by the New York Chapter of the National Academy of Television Arts & Sciences.

Anastos has covered major news stories over three decades, created and hosted innovative news programs such as “Positively Ernie”, and authored an acclaimed children’s book, “Ernie and the Big Newz”. He has been a regular columnist for Family Circle magazine.
JAMES PANTELIDIS RUNS
BOSTON MARATHON FOR CHARITY

James Pantelidis, a member of the Leadership 100 Board of Trustees ran in the 120th Boston Marathon on April 18, 2016 for the charity “Cops for Kids and Cancer.” A 501 (c) (3) charity, “Cops for Kids with Cancer” was founded by retired and active police officers and volunteers directly involved in the care of children with cancer providing help to their caregivers through difficult crises.

Pantelidis decided to run the Boston Marathon this year for the charity after having completed 12 New York City Marathons. He has already exceeded his fund-raising goal. His net time in the race was 4:43:16, overall 23160/26639, in male gender 12936/14471 and in division 839/993 (M60-64 Age Group).

Runners, survivors and city officials marked the three-year anniversary of the Boston Bombings, laying a wreath at a ceremony. Boston held a citywide moment of silence.

George Tsandikos, Leadership 100 Chairman, stated: “We commend Jim for his participation in the Boston Marathon and for his untiring support of the worthy cause of ‘Cops for Kids and Cancer’. He makes us all proud.”

FR. EUGENE PAPPAS AND ORTHODOX STUDENTS VISIT
LEADERSHIP 100 OFFICE

Rev. Fr. Eugene N. Pappas of Three Hierarchs Church in Brooklyn, New York visited the Leadership 100 Office in the Olympic Tower in Manhattan with 39 Greek Orthodox students from Xaverian High School, also in Brooklyn. Xaverian is the paramount Roman Catholic preparatory school offering Orthodox Christian instruction and sacramental worship. Fr. Eugene has taught on the faculty at the school in the area of ethics and morality for 34 years.

Paulette Poulos, Leadership 100 Executive Director, said she was delighted to welcome the esteemed priest, who also conducts a popular radio program on the Orthodox faith, along with the students. “We are most grateful to Fr. Eugene, an inspiring spiritual leader, for bringing this exceptional group of young men, who are devoted to their faith, to the Leadership 100 office,” she said.

The students, who were on their Paschal Retreat, also visited the exhibition at the newly opened Onassis Cultural Center on the ground floor of the Olympic Tower.
